

FULL MOUTH EXTRACTION WITH IMMEDIATE DENTURE

It is important to take your medication as prescribed to control discomfort. Good oral hygiene is very important. The morning after your procedure, begin using Peridex oral rinse two times daily and salt-water rinses four times daily.

Your stitches/sutures are resorbable. They will loosen and fall out within the next week or two.

See your dentist the day after your procedure or as soon as possible within the first few days.

Do not remove your dentures for the first 24 hours after surgery, even at night (or for 48 hours if you did not have an appointment with your dentist the day after). *An exception to this would be if the dentures simply will not stay in place at all. The dentures serve to compress the tissues to stop bleeding and minimize swelling. After that, you can remove the dentures at night to ensure healthy blood flow to the tissues.

You can clean your denture with denture cleaner or follow the advice of your dentist or prosthodontist.

Be patient with yourself as you acclimate to eating and speaking with your new dentures. It is normal to have excess saliva initially.

As you heal, your tissues will change and your dentures may require adjustment by your dentist.
